NCDW Report

National Career Development Week at Alice Springs was unfortunately, a low key event.

Most of the career development effort at Alice Springs occurs during August when an expo is held.

However, I was able to organise a small careers display at the Charles Darwin University Library thanks to Chief Librarian, Gillian who was most helpful.

Each of the five week days I wrote a blog post that related to each of the High Five Principles of Career Development identified by the National Career Development Week event organisers.

Only a few people commented on each of the posts, although almost 400 unique visitors made their way to the site during the week. As none entered the competition I had advertised on day one, nobody has been awarded the prize.

NATIONAL CAREER
DEVELOPMENT WEEK
Get the life you Love!

When you are trying to establish or develop a career, don't do it alone ... enlist some allies.

Why do you think nations at war have allies? It's because allies bring with them access to additional resources, expertise, a helping hand when they need it, and often a synergy not able to be otherwise tapped. Career development isn't much different from war (except hopefully nobody gets killed or injured!).
